- quality assurance management
- hazard analysis critical control points
- application of good manufacturing practises
- traceability

Open communication

Partners of GMP+ International use our platform for open communication on common interests regarding feed safety. They participate actively in consulting procedures and our meetings. We all communicate openly with the stakeholders in the feed and food chain. Our partners encourage the acceptance and application of the GMP+ FSA by their suppliers, customers and the official authorities.

Preventive and corrective measures

In our approach human and animal health take precedence over economic and commercial interests. This means preventive and corrective measures are taken and are based on the latest scientific knowledge. In case of doubt or lack of knowledge, we apply the principle of precautionary.

Mutual dependence

Our collective efforts have resulted in the establishment and maintenance of an international, chain-oriented certification scheme. It is a basis for every type of feed companies recognising the mutual dependence of all the links in the feed chain. In addition to the international standards, there is space for specific, national requirements to comply with national (market) demands.

Shared responsibility

Every company and link in the feed chain shares responsibility for the common interest of optimal feed safety assurance in the entire feed chain. Together, we comply with legal requirements and feed safety assurance related to the downstream (animal production) food chain demand according to our motto: Feed for Food. We are therefore making a proper response to the concerns of the animal production chain and the (consumer) concerns on food safety.
